SOPHOMORES WHIP FRESHMEN IN LAST GRIDIRON CONTEST

1926 Wins Interclass Battle 24-0

FIELD BECOMES SEA OF MUD

Slippery Ball Impossible To Hold

In the muddiest gridiron burlesque ever staged on Porter Field, the Sophomores last Saturday easily defeated the Freshmen by the score of 24-0. The field was literally a sea of mud and the game soon changed into a swimming race. It was practically impossible for anyone to hold the slippery ball and make any headway with it. However the heavier sophomores managed to march down the field three times and push their opponents down once, gathering a total of four touchdowns. They were unable to add the extra point after any of the scores. The freshmen were handicapped because of the fact that their numeral men were not allowed to play. The game was marred by one serious injury when William Davis '27, broke his leg in a scrimmage in the second period.

The game opened with the freshmen receiving the kickoff on their 40-yard line. They immediately proceeded to show the fastest way to lose ground and lost an average of ten yards each on the next four downs. On the last down they fumbled behind the line and Brenton fell on the ball for a touchdown.

Thereafter the game was a see-saw affair, there being a fumble or penalty on nearly every play. Williams took the ball over for another score late in the first period. In the second period Rice intercepted a pass for the sophomores and ran sixty yards for a touchdown but was called back because one of his team mates was offside. At the end of the third period and again in the fourth period the Sophomores rushed the ball down the field, Williams going around right end from the five-yard line twice for touchdowns. The freshmen were unable to make headway at any time throughout the game, losing many more yards than they gained.

INTERFRATERNITY CONFERENCE MEETS

To Form New National Fraternity At Meeting This Week

New York, Nov. 14.—A full-fledged national college fraternity, stretching from coast to coast, will be formed at the annual Interfraternity Conference to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania November 30 and December 1. This will be the first time that a national society will have been brought into being, full grown.

More than fifty locals have already signified their intention of being present for that purpose. In addition thirty-two interfraternity councils are sending undergraduate delegates, some coming from as far as California. A score of educators, among them several college presidents, will be present to join in the discussions of college and fraternity problems with the Conference delegates, which will number close to 250.

John White '24, will represent Sigma Phi Iota fraternity at the Interfraternity Conference in New York, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

Freshman Receives Fractured Leg In Inter-Class Contest

William E. Davis '27, of Providence, R. I., suffered a double fracture of the right leg just above the ankle in the annual Freshman-Sophomore football game on Porter Field Saturday. Davis received the ball on the kickoff at the opening of the second half, and was injured when he was tackled. He was immediately taken to Dr. Eddy's office where the break was set. An X-ray photograph revealed a clean break. Davis is now in Hepburn, Room 7, under the direct care of Mrs. Mason and the District Nurse. Dr. Eddy reports that he is as comfortable as can be expected and that he anticipates a normal recovery, tho Davis will probably not be out until after the Christmas recess.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS ATTRACTIVE BAZAAR

Yearly Event To Be Followed By Dancing

The annual Y. W. C. A. Christmas Bazaar will be held in McCullough Gymnasium the evening of Dec. 8. There are to be many special attractions this year, eight attractive booths, six acts and dancing afterwards. Among the booths will be a food booth, a candy booth, one where ice cream will be sold all during the evening, a fancy article booth, and one displaying the latest men's haberdashery.

The actors are busy rehearsing now for the six acts that will form part of the evening's entertainment. Fancy dancers, players and comedians will furnish their part of the program.

After the entertainment there will be dancing, a dime a dance. One of the College orchestras will furnish the music.

Admission to the Bazaar will be twenty-five cents.

New York, Nov. 20.

As one college fraternity man to others, President Coolidge has sent his greetings to the Greek letter delegates, representing 500,000 active and graduate fraternity men of the nation, who will convene at the Hotel Pennsylvania, November 30 and December 1, for the fourteenth annual Interfraternity Conference.

It has been planned for President Coolidge to be present to deliver an address.

"It would be a great pleasure for me to be present," he wrote, "but to my regret, conditions of public business render an absence from Washington at this time impossible. It will be a favor to me if you will extend my greetings and the assurance of my hope that at some future time, I will be able to meet some similar convention."

The President, a member of Phi Gamma Delta at Amherst College, is soon to be initiatd at the White House into the Delta Theta Pi legal fraternity. The initiatory delegation is expected to include Elihu Root, Newton D. Baker, former secretary of War, Gov. Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts, and Chief Justice Marshall of the Ohio Supreme Court.

Professor and Mrs. Charles B. Wright left Middlebury yesterday for their home in Akron, Ohio, where they expect to spend the winter.

DRAMA CLUB TO STAGE 3-ACT PLAY FRIDAY EVENING

Cast Includes Well-known Performers

KENNETH ANDERSON IN LEADING ROLE

Veteran Actors Behind Scenes Also

The Dramatic Club will present "The Prince Chap" by Edward Peple, in the Gymnasium Friday night. The cast includes several old favorites in Middlebury dramatics as well as some new actors of promising ability. Kenneth Anderson is to play the leading role in the part of William Peyton. Those who have witnessed Anderson's interpretations in former performances need no further endorsement of the play.

Miss Dorothy Johnson, who plays the part of Mrs. Arrington, and Michael Lorenzo as Jack Rodney will also be greeted as old friends on the Middlebury drama stage. It is said that Claudia, as played by the Misses Lacalle, Frost, and Cumings, promises an evening's entertainment by herself.

Messrs. Williams Benedict and Adams, all veterans, are handling the machinery of the play, thus assuring a smooth and pleasing presentation.

Much more might be said about the play but it would only serve to detract from the glamour of the actual performance. Besides, Y. K. W. promises to have several things to say about it next week.

The corrected cast of "The Prince Chap" follows.

Season's Social Event Attracts Many Tonight

All the tickets for the Sophomore Hop in McCullough Gymnasium tonight have been sold, the Hop Committee announces this morning. All in all the event promises to be the big social one of the season.

The effect of the decorations, arranged under the direction of John Connelly, committee chairman, is that of a green and white checkerboard. Evergreens are made use of in a tasteful manner. Vinetto's orchestra from the Ten Eyck in Albany will play.

PLAN EXTENSIVE HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Rink Already Set Up On Tennis Courts

Although the official hockey schedule has not been announced as yet, Manager Fletcher assures us that some good contests are in view. Hockey was started at Middlebury for the first time last season and it proved to be so popular that the plans for this year have been made more extensive.

The rink has already been erected on the courts near the Chemistry Building. Practice will commence as soon as there is weather cold enough to form good ice.

The letter men back this year are Fletcher, Leary, Twichell, Gonsalves and McLaughlin. Games with Williams, St. Michaels, Vermont, Springfield and R. P. I. are already pending. As this is a minor sport, freshmen are eligible and it is expected there will be some good material available from this source.

Twenty-five Report for Basketball Practice

Varsity basketball practice started Thursday with 25 men in the squad. Captain Axtel, Knowles and Hollquist, last year's letter men are returning, Leonard and Sikorski having graduated. Coach Perkins is encouraged by the outlook, realizing that success in basketball is coming to depend more and more on team work, and less on individual stars. The schedule is not yet complete, but thus far includes 13 games, two of which come before the holidays: Clarkson at Middlebury Dec. 15, and Harvard at Cambridge Dec. 18.

College Receives Curious Relic of Former Days

An old-fashioned silver mill, the property of former President Cyrus Hamlin of Middlebury, has recently been presented to the College by a daughter of former President Hamlin.

Student Conference On Foreign Relations

The Goucher Intercollegiate Conference of eastern students will be held in Baltimore, Dec. 7, 8 and 9, on "Youth and the Peacemakers." The purpose of this convention will be to arouse the first wholly spontaneous concerted expression of eastern student opinion on American foreign relations since the student disarmament conference at Princeton and Vassar in the fall of 1921.

Cluff on Committee

L. W. Cluff, 919 Boylston St., Boston Mass., is Middlebury's representative on the Committee for the New University Club of Boston, which is laying plans for the erection of a big new building. All alumni interested in this project should communicate with Mr. Cluff.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION EXPERT TO LECTURE MONDAY EVENING

Well-known Drama Coach Coming Dec. 10

NOTED PUBLISHER ALSO BOOKED

Vocational Schedule Brings Professional Leaders

The next of the Vocational Lectures will be given by Professor Jesse Williams of Columbia, in the Chemistry building Monday evening, December 3. His subject will be "Opportunities in the Field of Physical Education." Mr. Williams is the author of several text books on Physical Education which are now in use in Middlebury.

On December 10, Professor Baker of the Harvard "47 Workshop" will lecture on "Opportunities in the Field of Dramatics." On December 12 of the same week, Mr. Robert L. Obrien, Editor of the Boston Herald, will talk on "Journalism as a Profession."

In addition to the speakers already announced, Dean Wiley has secured for future lecturers, Mr. George H. Doran, head of the Doran Publishing Co. of New York, who will speak on "Writing," and Mr. Edward Dana, General Manager of the Boston Elevated Railway Co. and Chairman of the Committee on Education of the American Electric Railway Association. Definite dates for these two gentlemen have not yet been arranged.

FORUM TO MEET AT HEPBURN SUNDAY

Will Discuss World Court—Also Possibility of Becoming Member of National Forum

The Student Forum will meet next Sunday at 7:30 in the evening instead of at 9:30 a. m., and in Hepburn Social Hall in place of the usual meeting place at the Congregational Church. These changes were deemed advisable at least for the winter months when the early morning hour is not attractive.

The topic of discussion Sunday will be The World Court and Applied Christianity in International Relations. Professor J. S. Kingsley will as usual give a short address after the open forum is closed. Discussion outlines and summaries may be obtained at the College Book Store. The meeting is as ever open to all, both men and women.

The advisability of uniting with the National Student Forum will be brought up and discussed at this meeting. By such a union, speakers of international fame might be brought here at very little expense. Other advantages would also accrue to identification with the National Student Forum, which includes in its member organizations such clubs as the Yale Liberal Club, Dartmouth Round Table, Harvard Student Liberal Club, Wellesley College Forum, Stanford University Forum, and many others.

Seniors Hockey Champs

The hockey game of last week between the Seniors and Sophomores ended with a score of 6-1 in favor of the Senior team, which now claims the championship of the season. The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen by a score of 3-2. These were the last hockey games that will be played this season.

In "Around The Corner," which The Campus is opening this week, the Idler makes his bow, modestly hoping that in some measure he may fill the place of Jac. He realizes the difficulty of the task however, and will welcome any suggestions or contributions which may help to make his column a success.

Government By Responsibility

Is it too much to expect the college student to accept responsibility? Apparently he is not inclined to do so, and for that reason is hedged about with rules and restrictions. Since he is unwilling to be responsible for his own conduct, it becomes necessary for his instructors to set monitors over him to see that he keeps in his rightful place. Again we question, should an intelligent man, or woman, of college age be so lacking in individual initiative as to be willing that a faculty assume the responsibility of governing his or her conduct? Should not the sense of personal obligation control conduct, in the place of authoritative rule and fear of penalties?

What we are driving at is this: laws at best are a necessary evil, and among reasoning, well-bred, and well-educated people ought not to be necessary. This may be an idealistic view, but has it not a grain of truth? When individuals refuse to govern themselves, those who are enough their superiors to command respect feel obliged to step in and lay down the law. If one would be personally independent, he must consent to shoulder responsibility, both personal and social.

A year ago last spring it was proposed that honor be substituted for authority in the examination hall and class-room. The proposition was rejected. Sceptical of such a radical undertaking in student government, afraid to accept the responsibility, Middlebury closed the door on the honor system idea. It was a case in which men did not have faith in themselves. A few weeks ago the undergraduate men made it known very clearly that they considered it their own rightful prerogative to decide within reasonable bounds how a man should be treated during his freshman year. We mention it as a case in which men did have faith in themselves, and for that reason were exceedingly reluctant to surrender responsibility.

We feel safe in saying that just to the extent that Middlebury students show their willingness and ability to bear responsibility, to that extent rules and orders which are inflicted only upon irresponsibles, will become unnecessary and will be abandoned.

Would someone be so kind as to offer an answer to the conundrum: Why does the average woman favor co-education, while the average man does not?

A Skating Rink

As we approach the winter sports season there has come a suggestion which seems both feasible and profitable. It has to do with a skating rink for the Women's College. Inasmuch as there are two tennis courts in front of Pearson's Hall which could be boarded and flooded very easily for thus purpose, the suggestion is by no means impractical.

Two possible objections may be raised. The first is financial. This is not a serious one however, as the cost of building such a rink would not be great, and without doubt could be provided from the general emergency fund without making any great gap in that spring of resource. If those who use the rink would help with its upkeep, the initial cost would be practically the only one. The serious difficulty has to do with lack of enthusiasm. Skating is one of the most beneficial and pleasurable of exercises. Its devotees will not be slow in showing a proper ardor in the construction of a rink. But are the others, those who are not finished skaters but perhaps would like to be, sufficiently interested? Many who have heard the suggestion are very eager to see it carried out. If the rest have the same desire, they should manifest it and let the faculty know that their enthusiasm for this project merits most serious consideration.

Well, it is all over. The sheep have been separated from the goats, and now each will go his own way. It would be a source of great gratification to all if it could be proved that the fraternities pick out a man to be of some help to him instead of choosing him because they believe that he may be a credit and a help to the fraternity.

The Idler wouldn't be a bit surprised to learn that more than one male member of the class of 1927 had saved a whole week's board by the thoughtfulness of one or more of the fraternities on the hill, together with a little strategy as to keeping his hosts on the fence with regards to which crowd he intended to sign up with!

A Frosh was heard to wisely remark, down at one of the Houses the other day, when asked what he studied French for, "So I can get three credits."

"Gone are the days"—when a dignified senior will rush across the room to offer a cigarette, a mighty junior will obligingly light and hold the match, and the lordly sophomore will unbend himself so far as to place the ash tray in order that the serenely majestic frosh may enjoy his Luck-y in comfort.

"Another little zero wouldn't do us any harm."

1927: "Is the professor in?"
Ass't: "Not just now."
1927: "Well, you'll do just as well. Throw this theme in the waste basket."

The Id'er reads all the leading papers of New England, especially The Register of our own fair community. He even goes carefully over the advertisements. An interesting device—that motor truck that "walks like a man." He is thinking seriously of taking a cruise around to find a pedestrian who can run like a motor truck.

'81. "Was your son educated in Middlebury?"
'89: "No; he went to college there, but he got his education in Rutland."

When the Id'er heard Prexy say in chapel the other day that the Vermont game was another "Moral victory," he was reminded of the definition he once heard of that term: A moral victory is twin to an artistic success.

The salesmen in this town are not as slow as they seem to be. While hanging around the corner the other day the Idler overheard one of the town's auto dealers trying to persuade a prospect to invest in a product of the company he represents, by saying: 'Why, man, I'll sell you this car so cheap that you'll feel like an auto thief."

THE LITTERATEUR'S LAMENT

I lent a book to him;
He lent it to a friend;
The friend may take a whim
The favor to extend!
He'll lend it to another,
His sister or his brother,
And one of these days, maybe,
My book will be lent to me!

Someone has said that the only way to tell a woman's age is not to.

It's funny the things one runs into around the corner! The Idler has discovered a new ailment—"bridge-wrist." The cause has been found to be the constantly inhibited desire to strangle one's partner.

Yessir, the more one comes to know 'em, these '27 boys are "quite clevah, doncher knahow!" The other day in one of the biology classes, the professor in charge asked a verdant youngster what the least used bone in the human body was and received the prompt reply: "The head, sir."

THE LITERARY TRIANGLE

"SHE"—Haggard.
"HYMN"—McAndrew.
"HUR"—Wallace.

If the sun keeps on and the weather stays mild, it'll be the night of the Soph Slop.

COMMUNICATION

Coeducation Receives Another Box On The Ear From Correspondent

To the Editor of the Campus:

I was interested in M. M.'s letter of last week presenting some arguments in favor of co-education at Middlebury. Of course there are many things to be said on both sides but there were a few points in that letter which I would like to consider. In the first place, I would politely question if "higher ideals and gentler manners" are necessarily exclusive characteristics of the Women's College. Secondly, it seems that there are many of us who can hardly accept the family simile in M. M.'s second paragraph. The female contingent of the community may choose to liken itself to the wife, but surely the male representation registers a vigorous protest at being identified as the husband. Then in response to the question, "What better contribution could be made to the strength of any institution than the presence of two hundred and fifty serious-minded, deep thinking women?" I respectfully answer, "Two hundred and fifty additional m-e-n, MEN. Lastly to consider the merits of co-education, as Middlebury now has it, is to consider very appropriately "what is best for the progress of the College as a whole."

This is not a question of whether or not women should go to college, but of whether or not it would be a benefit to both the Men's and Women's Colleges at Middlebury to be entirely set apart one from the other.

Yours for a continued discussion,
D. H.

Alumni Contributors To Million Dollar Drive Here Listed According To Classes

The list of Middlebury graduates who have helped swell the total of Middlebury's Million Dollar Endowment Fund, corrected to date, is herewith published by desire of the national committee, Allen H. Nelson, chairman.

It is practically inevitable in a campaign such as Middlebury's Million has been, that an occasional pledge should fail to reach headquarters and so, altho the list of Alumni Contributors which follows has been checked most thoroughly with the records, it is very likely that some names do not appear which should be included. The committee would be very grateful if anyone whose name is omitted would be so kind as to write Mr. J. A. Fletcher at Middlebury and notify him of the error.

PREACHER EXALTS GENTLEMAN IDEALS

College Should Breed Gentlemen, Says Dr. Smart

Dr. I. C. Smart of Burlington was the speaker at vespers on Sunday. He took as his text Jeremiah 8:21. "For the hurt of the daughters of my people am I hurt."

He opened his address by speaking of the connotation of the word gentleman, one of the chief requisites being consideration and sympathy. "The tone of life in college or anywhere in life depends on the number of gentlemen in the community. Every college should be a favorable environment for the making of gentlemen, and for that reason this is a most favorable time for speaking of generosity to our fellows across the sea."

Dr. Smart urged the development of an attitude of mind sympathetic with the countries in trouble, and pointed out the motives behind the wish to heal the world's hurt, economic, the fear of war, and the instincts of a gentleman. He gave as examples of great gentlemen Abraham Lincoln, who extended the hand of fellowship to the south after the war, and from the scriptures, Jeremiah and Jesus Christ. "It cannot be well with us as individuals of America," he said, "while it is ill with them across the sea."

Green Mountain Club To Open House

The Green Mountain Club House which has been under construction all summer at Deer's Leap on the Rutland-Woodstock stage road, is now nearly completed. Open House will be celebrated Saturday, December 1st, from 12:00 noon until 9:00 p. m., during which time there will be light refreshments and music. During the afternoon, guides will be available for trips through the caves and to the top of Deer's Leap Cliff.

President Speaks To Y. W.

President Moody expanded the text "God gave them their request; but sent leanness to their souls", (Psalms 106:15) at the Thanksgiving service of the Y. W. C. A. last evening. Let us thank God, he said, for having said "No" to some of our requests, realizing that he has a better understanding than we ourselves of what we need.

Michael Prata favored the meeting with a violin solo "Meditation." He was accompanied by Miss Madeline Gaylor. Helen Lingham had charge of the program.

DECEMBER 2 TO BE GOLDEN RULE DAY

Fourteen Countries To Unite In Helping Near East Orphans

Are you going to eat the International Golden Rule Dinner on December second?

On this first Sunday in December American schools and colleges are asked to co-operate with foreign institutions of learning by serving a simple menu such as the children in Near East Relief orphanages have throughout the year, and give the difference in cost between this humble meal and the usual sumptuous Sunday dinner to feed the little boys and girls left friendless, homeless and countryless through wars and famine.

The observance of an International Golden Rule Sunday was decided upon at the first annual meeting of the International Near East Association, held in Geneva, Switzerland, early in September, for the purpose of co-ordinating the interest of the people of the world in the orphaned children of the Near East. Representatives of fourteen countries are asking their respective fellow-countrymen to observe Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 2.

1923 THIRTIETH YEAR OF FOOTBALL HERE

Gridiron Sport Predominant At Middlebury Since 1908

This is the thirtieth anniversary of Middlebury's football history. In the Fall of 1893 an uncoached squad tackled Norwich, and lost 34 to 0. Later in the season, however, Middlebury turned the tables to the tune of 12 to 4.

In the following year three games were arranged with the University of Vermont: The first Middlebury lost, 10 to 0, and the second she won 14 to 0. The result of the third will never be known. It is regrettable that our worthy forbears were so lacking in self-control. At any rate they were not permitted to play with those rough Burlington boys for some time thereafter.

During the season of '96, Middlebury played 8 games with Preparatory schools and town teams winning 6 and tying 2.

In '97, the eleven was exceedingly unfortunate as many men were unable to play against Vermont. Middlebury lost 14 to 0. After this season the team disbanded through lack of material.

For ten years football interest languished, and then in 1907 we played football with two of the teams we are encountering this year. Middlebury 0, Union 0; Middlebury 0, Norwich 6; Middlebury 5, Norwich 6.

In 1908 we lost two games to Norwich. It is interesting to note that in 1908 the Frosh P-rade made its first appearance.

Starting with 1908, football has flourished without dimunition; below are the scores with teams the Blue and White is playing this year.

1910 Middlebury 5, Union 17; Middlebury 5, Norwich 27.
1911 Middlebury 3, Norwich 24; Middlebury 0, Union 3.
1912 Middlebury 0, Norwich 39; Middlebury 6, Norwich 36.
1913 Middlebury 7, Vermont 10.
1914 Middlebury 7, Norwich 0; Middlebury 0, Vermont 0.
1915 Middlebury 0, Tufts 34; Middlebury 14, N. H. State 0; Middlebury 19, Norwich 13; Middlebury 6, Vermont 6.
1916 Middlebury 6, Union 0; Middlebury 20, Norwich 7; Middlebury 0, N. H. 0; Middlebury 6, Vermont 2.
Champions of Vermont, won 5, lost 2, tied 1.
1917 Middlebury 0, Norwich 7; Middlebury 7, Norwich 7.
1918 Middlebury 0, Norwich 7; Middlebury 0, Norwich 6; Middlebury 0, Vermont 0.
1919 Middlebury 3, Norwich 0; Middlebury 20 ,Clarkson 0; Middlebury defeated Vermont. Champions of Vermont.
1920 Middlebury 6, Union 0; Middlebury 0, Norwich 6; Middlebury 6, Vermont 0.
1921 Middlebury 6, Harvard 16; Middlebury 3, Norwich 0; Middlebury 14, Clarkson 0; Middlebury 7, Vermont 14.
1922 Middlebury 0, Harvard 20; Middlebury 20, Norwich 0; Middlebury 6, Tufts 0; Middlebury 6, Columbia 17; Middlebury 0, Vermont 32.

Hanks Clothing Store Looted By Burglars

The Clayton M. Hanks clothing store was looted by burglars at an early hour of the morning of Nov. 23. Merchandise, consisting of the latest fall suits and overcoats, sweaters, socks, ties, caps, hats, gloves and leather traveling bags were stolen. The value of the goods which the thieves made away with is estimated by Mr. Hanks at $250. About $5 in money was taken from the cash register.

Entrance to the store was gained by cutting a hole in a corner of a front window so that by reaching thru the nob of the door could be turned.

As yet the officers have no clue as to the identity or whreabouts of the criminals. They believe, however, that the burglary was committed by experienced robbers who not only knew the lay of the land but who had worked out a plan to avoid detection. It is supposed that they made their getaway by car.

Correction

The Campus wishes to correct an error in last week's issue. Le Doux '26 and not Purdy '26 was one of those who succeeded in getting a hand on the hat in the annual hat scrap between the sophomores and freshmen.

Says Students Should Select Own Education

California Professor Says Whole College System Needs Reorganizing

The following, clipped from the Mount Vernon Times, contains the striking opinions of a Californian on education.

Modern education will have to be reorganized before it can fulfill its highest destiny, according to Professor J. V. Breitweiser, associate professor of education of the University of California.

"As part of this reorganization Professor Breitweiser believes that the selection, dismissal and promotion of professors should all be in the hands of the students. "It is the student, not some member of the board of managers or directors, who can really gauge a man's ability to teach others," he said.

"University affairs, academic as well as social," he explained, "should be controlled by a group of people selected from both students and faculty. Under the present conditions students have no say in the academic part of university life, but this would make the university a truly democratic and republican body. The continual misunderstanding between faculty and students would soon die out.

"All degrees should be abolished and diplomas awarded solely on the basis of accomplishment," continud Professor Breitweiser. "A college student applying for a position, instead of presenting an A. B. degree obtained through cramming, would show a detailed statement of what he has learned at college.

"The college year should be divided into quarters, and the student should study only three subjects each quarter," he said. "This would enable him to concentrate upon certain definite lines of work and carry on individual research, which he cannot do if his attention is on half a dozen different courses. All courses should be elective. In this respect we should copy European universities.
